International presentations such as paper presentation in English, workshops with Russian students, faculty and students at Incheon University from Korea provided a meaningful experience for the participating students in positioning their research from a global perspective.

Also, Pacific National University students as the host provided support in many ways during their stay. Inter fellowship with each other through these activities were great harvest, joy and confident to students. It is expected that this training will be the first step as a highly professional person to solve the problems in the Far East and the Arctic.
